INDUCTION CEREMONY

As the procession enters, the following is sung

Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord. We bless you from the Lord's house. The Lord is God who has given us light. Bind the sacrifices to the horns (corners) of the altar with branches of myrtle. You are my God and I will thank You. You are my God and I will exalt you. Give thanks to the Lord for He is good – for His mercy lasts for ever.

PRAYER FOR THE QUEEN AND ROYAL FAMILY

Rabbi Israel Elia, Rabbi of Lauderdale Road Synagogue

May He who gives sovereignty to princes and delivers kings from harm, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, who delivers his servant David from the hurtful sword, who makes a way in the sea and a path through mighty waters, may He bless, preserve, guard, assist, exalt, magnify and make great

Our most gracious sovereign Queen ELIZABETH, PHILIP Duke of Edinburgh, CHARLES Prince of Wales, and all the royal family.

May the supreme King of kings in His mercy preserve them, grant them life and deliver them from all trouble and hurt. May the supreme King of kings in His mercy exalt them, cause their stars (reputations) to rise and lengthen the days of their reign. May the supreme King of kings in His mercy inspire them and all their counsellors and ministers with benevolence towards us and towards all Israel our brethren. PRAYER FOR THE STATE OF ISRAEL

Mr Eitan Na'eh, Chargé d'Affaires at the Embassy of Israel

May He who blessed our fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, Moses and Aaron, David and Solomon, bless the State of Israel and shine his divine light on its leaders and on its inhabitants and direct them with His good counsel. May He strengthen the hands of its defenders, those who place their souls in His hand; may he deliver them and save them from any harm. May He grant peace and eternal happiness to all its inhabitants. May He pour the spirit of the knowledge and the fear of the Lord upon them – that mercy and truth may meet there together for the good of all mankind, so that the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord and His promise be fulfilled that the Torah shall spread out from Zion and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. May this be the divine will; and let us say Amen.

PRAYER FOR THE CONGREGATION

Rabbi Joseph Dweck, Senior Rabbi of the Community

May He who blessed our fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, Moses, Aaron, David and Solomon and all the holy and pure congregations, bless this holy congregation, both great and small – them, their children, their wives, their disciples and all that is theirs. May the King of the universe bless you, grant you merit and listen to the voice of your pleading. May you be redeemed and delivered from all manner of trouble and distress. May the word of the Lord support and shield you and may He spread His tent of peace over you and plant brotherly love, peace and friendship amongst you. May He remove causeless bad-feeling from among you and break the grip of enemies from off your necks. And (may He) do for you what is written – 'The Lord God of your fathers make you a thousand times as many as you are and bless you as He has promised you'. May this be the divine will; and let us say Amen.

The Lord shall reign for ever, your God, Zion, for all generations.

Praise the Lord.

BLESSING FOR THE RABBIS

Dayan Yaron Navon, Head of the Sephardi Beth Din

May He who blessed our fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, Moses and Aaron, David and Solomon, bless guard, protect and support Rabbi Shalom Morris and Rabbi Daniel Kada, who have been elected rabbis of these holy congregations. May the Supreme King of kings send them help from the Sanctuary and strengthen them out of Zion; may their lips utter judgement, may their mouths speak wisdom, may their eyes look straight before You and shine by the light of the Law, and may their steps hasten to teach the words of Your Torah. May the Lord their God be with them in His guidance of Jacob His people, and of Israel, His inheritance, so that He may lead them by the right path to perform the will of their Father who is in heaven. SERVICE FOR HANUKAH

David Dangoor, President of the Board of Elders

Prior to lighting the lamps, the following blessings are recited

Blessed are you, Lord, our God, King of the universe, who has made us holy with his commandments and directed us to light the lamp for the Feast of Dedication.

Blessed are you, Lord, our God, King of the universe, who performed miracles for our forefathers in those days and at this time.

The following are recited while the lamps are being lit

These lights we light to commemorate the miracles, redemption, mighty deeds, acts of salvation, wonders and comforts that you performed for our fathers, through your holy priests, in those days and at this season. These lights are sacred all the eight days of Hanukah (Feast of Dedication), and we are not permitted to make any (material) use of them - but only to look at them (to remind us) to give thanks to your name for your miracles, salvation and wonders.

(Psalm 30) A Psalm (or) Song at the Dedication of the House – of David. I will praise you, Lord, for you have lifted me up and have not let my enemies rejoice over me. Lord, my God, I cried out to you and you healed me. Lord, you have brought up my soul from Sheol (the grave). You kept me alive (and preserved me) from descending into the pit. Sing to the Lord, you, his pious ones and give thanks when you recollect his holiness – for his anger is but for a moment and he delights in life. (Though) one may lie down weeping at night, joy comes in the morning. In peaceful times I said 'I shall never be shaken. Lord, only by your will did you support me firmly as a mountain'. You hid your face and I was afraid. I cried to you, Lord, and to the Lord I appealed – 'What is to be gained by sending me to the grave? Shall the dust praise you? Does it declare your truth?' Listen, Lord, and pardon me. Lord, be my helper. You turn my mourning into dancing. You undo my sackcloth, and clothe me with gladness – so that my whole being may praise you and not keep silent. Lord my God, I will thank you for ever.

Maoz Tsur

Fortress, rock of my salvation, it is fitting to praise you.

May the house of my prayers (the Temple) be re-established so that we can offer the sacrifice of thanksgiving there.

When you have prepared the slaughter of the barking foe, then will I conclude with a psalm, a song, for the dedication of the altar.

BEVIS MARKS

THE SYNAGOGUE IN BEVIS MARKS, opened in 1701, is the oldest to survive in use in Great Britain.

Jews first settled in England during the reign of William the Conqueror (1066-1089) and established a community renowned for its learning and prosperity. All its members were expelled by order of King Edward I in 1290; and it was not until the seventeenth century that Jews, very slowly, began to return. About twenty families of refugees from the Inquisitions of Spain and Portugal had established themselves in London by 1656. Outwardly Roman Catholic, attending mass regularly at the Spanish Embassy, they practised their ancestral faith in secret and only in the privacy of their own homes.

On 24 March 1656, in a tremendous act of courage, six heads of the most prominent families cast off their disguise and joined the celebrated Amsterdam Rabbi Menasseh ben Israel in presenting a petition to Oliver Cromwell. They asked the Lord Protector for an assurance that they could continue to meet safely for prayer in the privacy of their homes and for permission to buy land for a cemetery.

In 1657, following a verbal assurance from Cromwell, the first synagogue was opened on the upper floor of a converted house in Creechurch Lane. This was followed, forty-four years later, by the elegant building in Bevis Marks, still in regular use by the Spanish and Portuguese Jews' Congregation of London.

Tradition has it that Queen Anne presented an oak beam from one of the Royal Navy's ships to be incorporated in the roof of the building; and that the builder, a Quaker, returned his profit to the Congregation, declining to benefit from the building of a House of God. Oak benches from Creechurch Lane were incorporated in the back rows of seating. The six great brass candlesticks in front of the Ark and the largest of a total of seven candelabra were donated by the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue of Amsterdam.

The original building still stands almost unaltered. Doors to some of the pews were added in 1787 and seats for the choir in 1830. Electric lighting was installed in 1929.

Services were held continuously at Bevis Marks throughout both World Wars. The Synagogue was damaged in 1992 and 1993 as a result of terrorist bombings in the City of London, which prompted the beginning of an extensive ongoing repair and restoration programme.

English eventually replaced Portuguese as the working language of the Congregation; but Portuguese titles and phrases are still used for all ceremonial announcements, and on the Fast of Ab the Haphtarah is recited in medieval Spanish.

WEMBLEY

AT THE END OF THE 1950s, turmoil in the countries of the Middle East tolled the end of the Jewish presence in Arab countries; a presence that had lasted many hundreds of years. Jews were expelled or strongly encouraged to leave their homes. Communities and families were separated as they sought refuge in the west. Many settled in London, especially those from Egypt and Iraq. This provided the first injection of Sephardim to the long established Spanish and Portuguese Jews' Congregation for many years. The S&P was the natural home for these newcomers, since they shared a common tradition, common cultural background – many spoke Ladino – and the minhagim were similar.

At first most of the new yehidim frequented the Lauderdale Road Synagogue, however a large number had settled in NW London. Under the impetus of a handful of determined individuals, and with the support of the S&P's religious and lay leadership, Shabbat morning minyanim were held at different venues in NW London. In time and considering the demography, Wembley was identified as having the largest number of congregants.

For some six years Shabbbat morning services were held in a hired hall on East Lane, other communal activities took place in the homes of congregants. During that period the community grew, attracting young couples new to the area, as well as other Sephardim from surrounding districts.

The group forming the Wembley Committee initiated discussions with the Mahamad regarding the possibility of building a synagogue. Eventually, a suitable plot of land for the construction of a synagogue and new Bet Holim – Edinburg House – became available on Forty Avenue. Funding came from the S&P and a number of generous individual donors.

The Wembley Synagogue was inaugurated in April 1977 by Haham Solomon Gaon, in the presence of the community, local dignitaries, and representatives of other synagogues. This was a very moving moment, crowning years of work and dedication by many. Wembley became the first S&P synagogue to be opened in almost a century.

The architect conceived a simple, modern and functional, multipurpose building, which blends well with its surroundings and forms a unified front with Edinburg House.

For some thirty years the community was led by Dayan Dr. P. Toledano and Reverend Yossi Hourri, who retired after more than 40 years, both gave devoted service to their community. The successive lay leadership always ensured stable and efficient management. Continuity is at the heart of the Wembley Community, indeed now a third generation is taking the reins. Cohesion and a sense of family are the source of Wembley's strength.

The induction of Rabbi Kada as the Rabbi of Wembley – the youngest S&P community – together with that of Rabbi Morris in Bevis Marks – the oldest community – underlines the strong bond that exists between all three S&P synagogues. All are experiencing a regeneration and look forward to a long and bright future.
